ENTREPRENEURSHIP
: INDIAN BIBLIOGRAPHY

FOREWORD

One of the major objectives of EDI is to document the work being done in the field of Entrepreneurship Development in the country and act as a focal point for collecting, assessing and sharing the experience being acquired in the field. With the publication of this bibliography on Entrepreneurship, EDI makes its beginning in its research publication activity.

With the growing interest in entrepreneurship training and development in the last decade, gradually research in this area is picking up though it has still not gathered roots. There is a lot to be done not only in documenting Entrepreneurship Development Programmes, schemes and specific efforts in various parts of the country, but also encourage and support research to evaluate them so as to accelerate and spread the entrepreneurship movement with more effective results. It is hoped that the bibliography which combines books, articles and reports published in India or on the Indian scene will encourage scholars, doctoral students, entrepreneurship trainers and practitioners to benefit from the growing pool of knowledge and information available in these references.

Classification of various publications becomes quite complex especially when the subject covers macro policy aspects of economic development and regional spread; socio-cultural and ethnic factors; policies to support and strengthen new entrepreneurs versus improving the performance of existing ones; individual success stories versus performance of certain communities, castes and target groups; specific efforts ranging from liberal financing schemes to entrepreneurship training efforts calling for sharp selection techniques, development inputs etc.

In classifying various studies and publications, we have tried to divide them as finely as possible so that specific interest in a particular aspect of entrepreneurship is served by looking at references available in that area. As a result, same publication may get classified in more than one category. This is inevitable. But it facilitates seeking out a relevant reference.

This bibliography is not comprehensively complete. After this volume, our plan is to publish international references on this subject. This will be followed by updating of Volume I and revisions will be regularly undertaken.

We hope that this humble beginning will facilitate research and training in this important field. We will welcome comments and suggestions so as to improve upon the coverage and classification in the subsequent editions.
