Ahmedabad: Spiritual leader of BAPS sect Pramukh Swami launched former Indian president Dr APJ Abdul Kalam's latest book 'Transcendence' at Swaminarayan Temple in Sarangpur on Thursday.

The book documents Kalam's experience with Pramukh Swami, the correlation between science and technology and creative management.

The book has been divided into four parts. The first describes Kalam's interactions with Pramukh Swami, the second highlights some of the outstanding works of BAPS, the third discusses co-relation between science and spirituality and thoughts of leading scientists, and the fourth reflects on the ideals of creative leadership.

Kalam later visited the city and inaugurated Aashray, a techno-social business incubator, at Entrepreneurship Development Institute of India. Emphasizing on empowerment and inclusion of the needy for sustainable economic growth, Kalam stressed on the need for high education, safe drinking water, equitable distribution of resources and quality healthcare.

He said: "The world today is connected through four rapid connectivity. They are environment, people, economy and ideas. By 2030, I dream of a world where the divide between rural and urban, rich and the poor, developed and developing has narrowed down."
