Inculcating the 'Spirit of Enterprise' in Youth

Have you ever wondered what traits and characteristics does intelligence comprise of ? Most of you must not have given a real thought to this, perhaps because you always believed that intelligence in an individual is unchangeable and that each of us is gifted with a certain level of intelligence.

But did you know that your brain can execute much more than what you might ever have imagined ! Did you know you could still live upto the full potential of your intelligence and mental resources !

Intelligence level can be substantially advanced today by relevant exercises that develop some of its traits and characteristics such as; the values of creativity, goal perception, innovation, excellence, thus helping one recognise and advance the inherent talents and capabilities. These traits are synonymous with an 'enterprising attitude' which if cultivated, boost our level of intelligence and promote creative performances. Any impactful intervention in the formative years is bound to trigger this process.

You will agree that all worthwhile things in life start with a decision. We have instances in front of our eyes - Sachin Tendulkar decided to become a cricketer and worked hard to reach such great heights of success; Arundhati Roy decided to become a writer and certainly demonstrated her creative talent to win the Booker's Prize.

Any remarkable performance in any field is marked by high intelligence level which is nothing but an enterprising bent of mind; an ability to do things differently.

It is the values of entrepreneurship in a person that translate into improved intelligence and in turn meaningful accomplishments.

In consonance with this objective, Entrepreneurship Development Institute of India (EDI) has been successfully organising SUMMER CAMPS to facilitate the development of enterprising values among youth. Regularly since 1992, through its 'Summer Camp on Entrepreneurial Adventures for Youth' (popularly known as 'youth camp'), the Institute has successfully inspired and motivated around 360 youth from the country. The Institute now announces its twelfth 'Youth Camp' in the series.

Objectives & Focus

- To enable youth to realize their latent potential and develop their capabilities to meet the challenges ahead;
- To counsel and motivate them to seek independent, innovative and challenging career options;
- To foster entrepreneurial traits among them including creativity, concern for excellence, leadership, problem solving, etc.;

Feedback

"I found the details on various activities of the camp highly interesting and so I took the decision of sending my son to the camp. I feel I had taken just the right decision as there is a marked difference in my son's approach to issues relating to his present preoccupations and also his career. He has developed a positive analytical approach to all concerns. The change in him is quite visible and I am happy with it."
